Dear Bill:

How does one say thank you for the generous hospitality which you and your associates extended to our group on Monday. Our eyes were opened and our hearts touched as we reviewed the many programs which you have pioneered.

I spent an hour last evening telling my wife of the many experiences relating to the visit including the well-fed children in the Care Center, the pride of the man who declared he was an honorary foster grandfather to the group, and the mind-boggling applications of computer science to so many aspects of daily living.

Please convey to one and all our profound thanks and gratitude.

We will review our operation to determine the correct person to interface with Control Data in accordance with the request made by Karl Blake.

As you know, Bill, the word pioneer has a special meaning to the Mormons. Webster defines a pioneer as "one who goes before showing others the way to follow." I like this definition for it fits my friend, Bill Norris, perfectly.

Again my sincere thanks.

Most sincerely,

Thomas S. Monson
